PRINCIPLES OF OPERATIONS MANAGEMENT: BUILD CUSTOMIZED TRAINING PROGRAMS

The customizable APICS Principles of Operations Management courseware series provides solid foundational operations management knowledge for professionals of all educational backgrounds and levels of work experience

Fill knowledge gaps in your organization

APICS Principles of Operations Management is the ideal educational program for your organization's unique training needs. This program is designed for a wide range of participants, from college students to working professionals, from those who are new to operations management to non-operations management staff looking to familiarize themselves with the concepts and applications of operations management.

Use this exciting new educational program to fit the specific needs of your employees' learning requirements, educational backgrounds and experience levels.

Flexible learning options

The APICS Principles of Operations Management program consists of five modular courses. Within each course are nine educational sessions and two exams. The sessions can serve as stand-alone mini-courses or be combined with sessions from other Principles courses to create a customized learning experience.

The APICS Principles of Operations Management will provide employees with a foundational knowledge of the principles, methods, techniques and language of operations management. To see all the ways you can customize your employees' learning experiences, go to apics.org/customize.
